DISCUSSION	- Norco: Their website is really good when it comes to the pathways stuff. The division into four schools is very helpful. The trailhead feature for first time students, which advises student's what to take their first semester is helpful. - Southwestern College: The tiles on the home page are helpful. The Fields of Study breakdown is similar to the feature on the Norco College website. - COD: Getting started, Academic Programs, Math and Sciences. The catalog did help student Jose Luis Huerta when figuring out which classes to take for his major. Fields of study is preferred over departments, says student member Jose Luis Huerta. - Bakersfield: The expected salary under each major for possible jobs was helpful. - Mira Costa College: Did not like that pathways was under the menu. The key feature to differentiate degree/certificate is helpful. - Search bar for the RCC College website is good at directing students where to apply. It lays out the different processes for what type of student you are: New, returning, etc. Business + Tech • Business • Service Industries • Technology + Information Systems • Industrial+ Transportation Tech Languages, Communications, Humanities • English, Communications, Journalism • Cultural Studies, Humanities, World Languages • Arts, Humanities, Communication Creative + Applied Arts • Arts, Media, Design Health Sciences • Health, Medical Occupation
